NATURAL MISTAKE TO MAKE

Name Mentioned Surely Signified Nothing if Not the Presence of Some Dignified "Frau?"

"You can have too much of anything, even roses," said a visitor to the Woman. "The friend I was staying with were botany friends. I like flowers, but I can't dissect them and label them with foreign names. We were out riding, and he came to a beautiful garden. They stopped the car and talked botany for what seemed hours.

"I was quite drowsy, when suddenly my suitcase, leaning across me, called out: 'There's Frau Karl! Where?' asked the one at the wheel, hitting the car. 'There! There! In that garden; along the path to the left,' explained the third, while I craned an inquisitive neck to see the dignified and portly dame their enthusiasm made me expect to find striding in parasol-shade leisure through her grounds. 'How perfectly wonderful to run across a friend so accidentally,' said I, relieved at the change of conversation. 'Do let's stop for a moment to call on her! Whoop! Five sets of eyes surveyed me with amazement. 'Call on her?' cried the eyes' owners, all at once. 'On her? Why, it's a rose we mean, a Frau Karl Dinschki!'" —Chicago Journal.

Mystery of Trees.

One of the most puzzling questions in botany is, "Why or how does water rise to the top of a tree?"

Various explanations of the phenomenon have been proposed, but none is regarded as altogether satisfactory. One investigator attacked the problem by means of interesting and novel experiments. For instance he constructed an artificial tree of plaster of paris and found that water moved upward in it more than 40 feet high. Yet he was unable to base any definite conclusion upon the result, that he obtained. The water moves a large part of the way in a film, he went on to explain, on the one side and the wall on the other. But the physical properties of the film are yet unknown.

Tornadoes "All Set" For Game With Hill Top "Y" Aggregation

Local Outfit Will Put Its Strongest Team in the Field.

COKERS AT GREENSBURG

The Tornadoes were all set this morning for the game with the Hill Top Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh this afternoon, regarded as the hardest one yet scheduled, and likely as one of the hardest of the entire year. The locals have practiced faithfully, getting up speed and developing new plays.

The contest is scheduled to start at 3:45 o'clock. This will give every fan an opportunity to see the entire or greater portion of the game. The fact that Coach Jones and M. S. Smith are to play has added great interest to the clash and insures a big crowd.

UNITED LIKES TREATMENT BY CONNELLSVILLE

In a letter received here by George Marietta, from Jacob Kromer, of the United team which was defeated by a 6-0 score by the Tornadoes three weeks ago, he expressed gratification for the excellent treatment extended his outfit by the Tornadoes, the officials and the fans.

"The boys were jammed and bruised up," he said, speaking of the condition of the players on their return home. "They took the game on short notice and did not have four hours' training (together). After the manager had arranged the game the team wanted to cancel, saying Conneltsville was too tough for the first game, but we insisted they must play."

"Now understand I am not making any excuses for our defeat. We gave you the best we had and I hope for the good of the game that we pleased the fans. The best team won. The Conneltsville fans are fair, your city officials see that the field is kept clear for both teams; your officials at the game are absolutely on the square and the Conneltsville football team all aim to play clean football. I don't think your coach, Mr. Jones, would stand for anything else."

Youngwood Leaves Field During Game With E. H. T. High

The football game played at Altoona yesterday afternoon between Youngwood High School and East Huntingdon High ended abruptly when the Youngwood team left the field just five minutes before the end of the first half. At that time the score was 6-0, East Huntingdon.

The visitors left the grid because of objection to a ruling of Referee Gora. According to reports this morning East Huntingdon attempted a forward pass, Reavetz, fullback, passing the ball. A Youngwood player knocked the ball to the ground and then picked it up, running to the goal line. The referee ruled an incomplete forward pass and called the ball back. Then Youngwood quit.

East Huntingdon, up to that period had made four first downs to one for the visitors.

The line-up:
East Huntingdon. Youngwood.
Stallman. L. E. Newquist
McNally. L. T. Ziganovic
Bowman. L. G. Hollinger
Hostette. C. Stein

Deah. R. Householder

Hold Greensburg Is Aim of Cokers In Today's Game

Connellsville High School's football team went to Greensburg this morning on a Pennsylvania railroad train and ate dinner there, taking things easy preparatory to meeting the strong Westmoreland county team at Athletic Park this afternoon. The team is prepared to hold the strong Brown and White eleven to a low score.

A number of fans left here at 1 o'clock on the West Penn. but no special car was chartered.

Serious Bladder Trouble.
"Could not stand nor sit and was forced to cry out from intense pain," writes Henry Williams, Tarkio, Mo. "The doctors said I had inflammation of the bladder and an operation was necessary. Tried Foley Kidney Pills and improved at once. Tell all my friends about Foley Kidney Pills as it will save many from suffering and perhaps, as in my case, a dangerous operation." Bladder and kidney trouble demand prompt treatment. Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief. Sold everywhere.—Advertisement.

A Sturdy Six at the Price of a Light Six

At its new low price the Jewett Six is still further removed from the possibility of legitimate comparison or competition.

This Paige-built six-cylinder, 50 horsepower automobile was introduced to the public less than a year ago as a new standard of value. On that basis it made good with a success of amazing proportions, for here at last at the price of a so-called "light" six was a six of genuinely sturdy construction. Every part and unit was found to be more than equal to the demand of any speed, or any condition of the road.

The car that unquestionably established a standard of unprecedented value has now been reduced to $995 f.o.b. factory. There is just one way to understand what this price means. You must examine the Jewett, ride in it, and then compare it with any other five-passenger six.

The complete Paige-Jewett line of six-cylinder passenger cars offer a selection of thirteen models priced from $995 to $2350. The complete line of Paige trucks meets every hauling need. They are sold and serviced by Paige dealers everywhere.

THE SOISSON.

"THE CROSSROADS OF NEW YORK" showing today at this theatre, is a 12th National picture presenting an all star cast. The plot involves the vicissitudes of a young lad from the country who has to face in his invasion of a big city. The evolution of the picture is full of surprises. The featured players are George O'Hara, Kathryn McGuire, Nona Beary, Ethel Grey and Charles Murray.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Katharine MacDonald will be seen in "The Infidel."

THE PARAMOUNT.

"GOLD GRABBERS," presenting Franklyn Farnum in the stellar role, is the leading picture today at this theatre. It is a great mystery story told in a red-blooded way. "Shorty" Hamilton, Al Hart and Peggy O'Leary appear in the support of Mr. Farnum. Monday and Tuesday Gladys Walton will be seen in "Second Hand Rose."

THE ORPHEUM.

"TRAVELIN' ON," which is being shown today at this theatre, is a Paramount picture starring William S. Hart. This is a picture to make even the most hard-boiled film fan sit in that uncomfortable position—balanced on the edge of the seat—right from the beginning to the end, wondering with bated breath just how the story is going to end. Mr. Hart wrote the story with that end in view.

A story of colorful Spain, of moonlight, of sorceries, of dancing and gutters—the land of passionate love-making—written by Vicente Blasco Ibañez, author of "The Four Horsemen," adapted by June Mathis. Gale Dismounted to Lead His Horse, to Go Forward More Slowly.

ridden sixty miles since morning, and he was tired, and not entirely healed wound in his hip made one leg drag a little. A mile up the arroyo, near its head, lay the Papago well. The need of water for his horse entailed a risk that otherwise he could have avoided. The well was on Mexican soil. Gale distinguished a faint light flickering through the thin, shaggy foliage. Campers were at the well, and, whoever they were, no doubt, they had prevented Ladd from meeting Gale. Ladd had gone back to the next waterhole, or maybe he was hiding in an arroyo to the eastward, awaiting developments.

Gale turned his horse, not without urge of iron arm and persuasive speech, for the desert stood seared, water, and plodded back to the edge of the arroyo, where in a saguaro circle of mesquite he halted. The horse snorted his relief at the removal of the heavy, burdened saddle and accoutrements. Gale poured the contents of his larger canteen into his hat and held it to the horse's nose. "Drink, Sol," he said.

It was but a drop for a thirsty horse. However, Blanco Sol rubbed a wet muzzle against Gale's hand in appreciation. Gale loved the horse, and was loved in return. There had saved each other's lives, and had spent long days and nights of desert solitude together.

The spot of secluded ground was covered with bunches of galleta grass upon which Sol began to graze. Gale made a long halter of his lariat to keep the horse from wandering in search of water. Next Gale kicked off the cumbersome chapsaroles, with their flapping, tripping folds of leather over his feet, and drawing a long rifle from his saddle sheath, he slipped away into the shadows. In the soft mud his steps made no sound. The twinkling light vanished occasionally, like a jack-o'-lantern, and when it did show it seemed still a long way off. Gale was not seeking trouble or to-tilting danger. Water was the thing that drove him. He must see who these campers were, and then decide how to give Blanco Sol a drink.

Sleeping low, with bushy mesquites between him and the foe, Gale advanced. The coyotes were in full cry. Gale heard the tramping, stamping thumps of many hoofs. The sound worried him. Foot by foot he advanced, and finally began to crawl. The nearer he approached the head of the arroyo, where the well was located, the thicker grew the desert vegetation. He secured a favorable position, and then rose to peep from behind his covert.

He saw a bright fire, not a cooking fire, for that would have been low and red, but a crackling blaze of mesquite. Three men were in sight, all close to the burning sticks. They were Mexicans and of the coarse type of riders, robbers, bandits that Gale has expected to see. A glint of steel caught his eye. Three short, shiny carbines leaned against a rock. A little to the left, within the circle of light, stood a square house made of adobe bricks. This house was a Mexican Indian habitation, and a month before had been occupied by a family that had been murdered or driven off by a roving band of outlaws. A rude corral showed dimly in the edge of twilight, and from a black mass within came the snort and stamp and whinny of horses.

Gale took in the scene in one quick glance, then sank down at the foot of the mesquite. He had naturally expected to see more men. But the situation was by no means new. This was one, or part of one, of the ruder bands harrying the border. They were stealing horses, or driving a herd already stolen. Gale revolved questions in mind. Had this trio of outlaws run across Ladd? It was not likely, for in that event they might not have been so comfortable and care-free in camp. Were they waiting for more members of their gang? That was very probable. With Gale, however, the most important consideration was how to get his horse to water. Sol must have a drink if it cost a fight. There was stern reason for Gale to hurry eastward along the trail.

He thought it best to go back to where he had left his horse and not make any decisive move until daylight. With the same noiseless care he had exercised in the advance, Gale retreated until it was safe for him to rise and walk on down the arroyo. He found Blanco Sol contentedly grazing. Gale carried his saddle, blankets and bags into the lee of a little greasewood-covered mound, from around which the wind had cut the sold; and here, in a wash, he plucked building a fire. By this time the wind was piercingly cold. Gale's hands were numb, and he moved them to and fro in the little blaze. Then he made coffee in a cup, cooked some slices of bacon on the end of a stick, and took a couple of hard biscuits from a saddlebag. Of these his meal consisted. After that he removed the halter from Blanco Sol, intending to leave him free to graze for a while.

The Sportsman's Pall

By Wright-Miller Co. "Over the hills and through the woods" with your shotgun over your shoulder; on the line with the fresh breeze; out on the lake of a damp morning coaxing the fluky tribe via hook and line;—your sweater keeps you warm, yet leaves every muscle free for quick action—no pull, no bind. That's to enjoy your favorite sport at its best.

Killed so strong and light and would scarcely know you had a wool sweater on, yet in warmth, without bulkiness, and protection from draught and dampness, its "comfy" feel is very acceptable.

Mighty good looking, too, a well-made wool sweater; just the thing for knock-about, work or play, indoors or outdoors, for motoring, skating, tramping, fishing, hunting, gardening. In maroon, blue, gray, black and heather mixtures, there's a shade to suit any man's fancy in the stock of the modern clothier.

Better dressed men everywhere include a sweater in their wardrobes. The good clothier can supply these, which will stand hard wear and retain their elasticity and form fitting qualities. But be sure you patronize a reliable clothier, as many sweaters are made of "cheap" and therefore productive only of regrets.
